

Exercise: Setting the font

1. Open `coffee.html` in your browser. It is already linked to an external style sheet named `coffee-styles.css`.
2. In your editor, open the `coffee-styles.css` file.
3. Add the following new rule to the stylesheet:

```
body { font-family: Verdana, Geneva, sans-serif; }
```

All text elements are children of the `body` element, so they will all inherit this style.

4. Save your changes and reload the page in your browser.

All text on the page will be displayed with the Verdana font that is installed on Windows computers.

5. In the style sheet, add the following rule:

```
h1, h2, h3 { font-family: Georgia, Garamond, serif; }

5. Save your changes and reload the page in your browser.

The headings now appear in the font Georgia, a serif font installed on Windows computers. The other content continues to inherit the `body` rule.
